Homeschool Medieval and Renaissance Worksheet

Before you start exploring the galleries here are a few Art Museum Guidelines and Manners:

-  Please stay at least three feet away from the art, cases, or wall labels even when gesturing, as the oils on our hands cause damage.
-  Remind your group to only walk while in the museum.
-  We encourage discussion in the galleries, but please use your inside voices to be respectful of other museum visitors.
-  If your groups will be writing in the galleries, please only use pencils – no markers or pens allowed. We also ask that you do not use the gallery walls or cases as writing surfaces.
-  We ask that there is no eating, drinking, or chewing gum in the galleries.
-  All backpacks or large bags must be checked in the coat room, unless there are medical purposes for keeping the bag.
-  If you or anyone in your group has questions while in the galleries, there are friendly guards stationed throughout the museum. Say hello, and don't be afraid to ask for help.
-  Finally, please be sure to enjoy your time here at the museum!

Now that you have your parent's permission and your teacher's approval to visit the museum, find out about the art displayed or created there. Discuss what you learn with your teacher.

Explore our collection before you visit! If you find a work of art you like, try to find it in the museum during your visit. <https://www.cincinnatiartmuseum.org/art/explore-the-collection/>

Medieval European Art

The Medieval period in Europe, also known as the Middle Ages or Dark Ages, started around 476 AD, after the fall of the Roman Empire, and lasted until the early 1400s. It was a time marked by war and sickness that caused many people to keep to themselves and their family, eating, praying, and living in a very personal, closed-off way. This way of life is reflected in the art, which often featured Christian imagery in the form of personal devotional objects that were small enough for people to keep in their home or carry with them.

Some of the most important works of art from the Medieval period in Europe are the illuminated manuscripts created by Christian monks. These images were created to illustrate the Bible, for the many people who could not read at the time. Each image and every word was painted by hand because the printing press, which can create many books at one time, was not invented until 1440 by Johannes Gutenberg. Each book was made specifically for the people who purchased them. Therefore, these Bibles were highly personalized objects.

Renaissance Art

Many works of Renaissance art depicted religious images, including subjects such as the Virgin Mary, or Madonna. Many of these paintings were displayed in churches for large groups of people to observe and worship at one time during a service at the church.

The Italian Renaissance

The Italian Renaissance began after a period in European history called the Middle Ages because of the disease and ignorance that plagued the continent and the lack of a strong central government in any kingdom. Once Europe emerged from the Middle Ages, there was a flourishing of the arts. That is why this period is called the Renaissance, which means “rebirth” in French.

Fra Angelico, one of the main painters of the Italian Renaissance, created art during the early Renaissance. His paintings highlight what separated the Renaissance from the Middle Ages: the ability to create depth in a painting by using light and shadow. Some of Fra Angelico’s most popular works of art are his private devotional works.

The Northern Renaissance

Before the year 1500, the new Renaissance ways of thought and creating had not traveled outside Italy, but by the late 1400s, Renaissance ideas began to travel throughout Europe and artists from other countries learned new ways of painting from the Italian masters.

Albrecht Dürer was one of the most prominent artists in the Northern Renaissance, known for his very realistic detailed paintings and prints. It is important to consider that at different times in Dürer's life, he was utilizing different styles and techniques, though his prints are the most well known.

The Spanish Renaissance

The Spanish Renaissance, refers to a movement emerging from the Italian Renaissance during the 14th century, that spread to Spain during the 15th and 16th centuries.

El Greco was a painter during the Spanish Renaissance known for his elongated, distorted, and exaggerated figures painted in the Mannerist style. Mannerist works are viewed as an extension of Renaissance styles, featuring graceful but elongated limbs, small heads, and stylized facial features. The deep, linear perspective space of Mannerist painting is flattened and obscured so that the figures appear as a decorative arrangement of forms in front of a flat background.

Take a trip

El Greco's name actually means "The Greek" in Spanish. He was originally from the Greek island of Crete and moved to Spain as Renaissance ideas spread through Europe. To get an idea of El Greco's journey, circle both Spain and the island of Crete, then draw the route you would take to travel between the two locations. How you would travel to get from one place to another?
